

Proclamation 6177 of September 11, 1990

National Give the Kids a Fighting Chance Week, 1990

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

In a society that focuses much attention on physical appearance, looking "different" can be very difficult—especially for a child. Children who have some kind of craniofacial deformity often experience rejection and emotional isolation as well. Fortunately, however, a number of organizations throughout the United States and around the world are working to help young people with craniofacial disfigurement.

The International Craniofacial Foundations, Inc., its affiliated centers, the National Foundation for Facial Reconstruction, and other concerned organizations fund research and education programs designed to aid those affected by craniofacial deformity. Seeking out individuals who can benefit from their services, these organizations have also funded surgical and nonsurgical treatment for more than 10,000 patients throughout the United States and 12 countries.

Efforts to ease the burdens of the youngest sufferers of craniofacial deformities—to give them a fighting chance—merit recognition. This week, we pay tribute to the dedicated men and women who are working on behalf of these special children and their families.

The Congress, by House Joint Resolution 515 (Public Law 101-371), has designated the week beginning September 16, 1990, as "National Give the Kids a Fighting Chance Week" and has authorized and requested the President to issue a proclamation in observance of this week.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GEORGE BUSH, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim the week beginning September 16, 1990, as National Give the Kids a Fighting Chance Week. I call upon the people of the United States to observe this week with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this eleventh day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and ninety, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and fifteenth.

Proclamation 6178 of September 12, 1990

National Historically Black Colleges Week, 1990

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

For more than 100 years, our Nation's historically Black colleges and universities have been committed to opportunity and academic excellence. At a time when many institutions of higher learning barred their doors to Black Americans, these colleges and universities offered minority men and women their best, and often their only, opportunity to pursue a post-secondary education. Today, while the barriers that led to the creation of separate schools for minority students have been eliminated by law, America's historically Black colleges and universities continue a great tradition of educational choice and diversity.

Since the first of these institutions was established over a century ago, historically Black colleges and universities have played a significant role in the social, economic, and political development of the United States. Thousands of their students worked tirelessly and courageously during the early years of the civil rights movement, seeking an end to racial discrimination and segregation in the United States and calling upon their fellow Americans to uphold this Nation's promise as a land of liberty and opportunity for all. Their graduates have advanced to distinguished and influential careers in business, government, education, science, engineering, and in virtually every other field of endeavor. Today historically Black colleges and universities offer Americans of all backgrounds rewarding opportunities to gain the knowledge and skills needed to participate more fully in our increasingly technological and competitive world.

In recognition of the exemplary goals and achievements of historically Black colleges and universities, the Congress, by Senate Joint Resolution 285, has designated the week beginning September 9 and ending September 15, 1990, as "National Historically Black Colleges Week" and has authorized and requested the President to issue a proclamation in observance of this week.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GEORGE BUSH, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim the week of September 9 through September 15, 1990, as National Historically Black Colleges Week. I encourage all Americans to observe this week with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities designed to express our appreciation and support for these important educational institutions.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 12th day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and ninety, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and fifteenth.
